Ace of clubs: Vic Thrill

If you've been looking for the next Ziggy Stardust, your spaceship has landed. The band Vic Thrill is New York's latest reincarnation of the leper messiah, complete with space-age props and a serious case of techno-generation paranoia.

Featuring former members of the Bogmen, Vic Thrill creates a Bowie-ish match of glam-rock boogie and updated pop hooks. "Wailing Wall" and "Nobody's Watching the Radar" are two of the group's standout tracks, offering a manic sense of agitation and urgency.

You can also catch the band at the Mercury Lounge on Feb. 5.
